

April 1, 2008

Colorado Chapter of National Association of Corporate Directors (NACD) adds Molson Coors executive to Board

Kathy Cunningham, President of the Colorado Chapter of NACD, announced the election of Timothy Wolf to the Colorado chapter's Board of Directors. Mr. Wolf is the Global Chief Financial Officer for Molson Coors, headquartered in Denver, Colorado.

"Tim is a powerful addition to our board", said Ms. Cunningham. "He has spent over 13 years with the Adolph Coors Company and Molson Coors Brewing Company, and prior to that he held senior planning, strategy and control positions at PepsiCo. He's also been with Walt Disney Company's global operations in Burbank, CA and Paris, France, as well as with Hyatt Hotels. Mr. Wolf currently serves on the Board of Directors of Xcel Energy and the Denver Hospice. We are proud to have Tim as a board member."

Founded in 1977, the National Association of Corporate Directors is the only not-for-profit membership organization dedicated exclusively to serving the corporate governance needs of directors and boards. NACD's mission is to achieve improved corporate performance through better board practices. By offering education, information, conducting independent research, and disseminating leading practices, NACD provides resources for increasing director and board effectiveness.

The Colorado Chapter of NACD has over 250 members who serve on boards of public, private and not-for-profit corporations. The chapter produces eight programs a year that are dedicated to education within the community of good corporate governance practices. The Colorado chapter website may be viewed at www.nacd-colorado.org.

For additional information please contact Vanessa Shields, Chapter Administrator at vshields@nacd-colorado.org.

--end--